NATURE GUIDE – INFORMATION SHEET Teapot Hill

Name of Club submitting this form Nature Chilliwack Debora Soutar / Janne Perrin / Denis Knopp / Lee Larkin Cultus Lake, BC Area Chilliwack Cultus Lake, BC Location Name Teapot Hill Key Photos Pacific sideband snail – Lee Larkin – https://flic.kr/p/2pq8H8T View from top of the hill – Denis Knopp – https://flic.kr/p/2pq848T View from top of the hill – Denis Knopp – https://flic.kr/p/2pq848T Description Main trailhead (Road 918) and parking lot is right across from Honeymoon Bay Group Campground in Cultus Lake Provincial Park. Road 918 is a fire access road, so the beginning of the trail is a steady climb on a road grade. There is an outhouse and map sign about 100 meters from the trailhead. After about 20 minutes, the Horse Trail branches off to the left and heads north all the way to the park entrance. Continue a bit further to another fork and take the marked trail to the right. A steep climb begins soon and the next thing you know you're on top of the ridge which leads you to the final viewpoint where you can see Cultus Lake, Vedder Mountain, and Columbia Valley. Return the way you came or take an alternate route to Watt Creek. https://flic.kr/s/aHBgIB91R3 Geographical Description East side of Cultus Lake across the highway from Honeymoon Bay Campground. Area/Trail Length Approximately 5 km return. Seasons to Visit Spring for wildflowers, Summer for birds, Fall for colourful maple leaves, Winter for open vistas. Any time for a great view from the top. Habitat, Eco system Cedar/hemlock forest in successio
Name of club members completing this form Debora Soutar / Janne Perrin / Denis Knopp / Lee Larkin Region Cultus Lake, BC Area Chilliwack Location Name Teapot Hill Key Photos Pacific sideband snail – Lee Larkin – https://flic.kr/p/2pq8H8T View from top of the hill – Denis Knopp – https://flic.kr/p/2pqe8WG Phantom orchid in bloom – Denis Knopp – https://flic.kr/p/2pqe8WG Description Main trailhead (Road 918) and parking lot is right across from Honeymoon Bay Group Campground in Cultus Lake Provincial Park. Road 918 is a fire access road, so the beginning of the trail is a steady climb on a road grade. There is an outhouse and map sign about 100 meters from the trailhead. After about 20 minutes, the Horse Trail branches off to the left and heads north all the way to the park entrance. Continue a bit further to another fork and take the marked trail to the right. A steep climb begins soon and the next thing you know you're on top of the ridge which leads you to the final viewpoint where you can see Cultus Lake, Vedder Mountain, and Columbia Valley. Return the way you came or take an alternate route to Watt Creek. https://flic.kr/s/aHBgiB91R3 Geographical East side of Cultus Lake across the highway from Honeymoon Bay Campground. Area/Trail Length Approximately 5 km return. Seasons to Visit Spring for wildflowers, Summer for birds, Fall for colourful maple leaves, Winter for open vistas. Any time for a great view from the top. Habitat, Eco system Cedar/heremlock forest in succession. Moist, lower elevations st
completing this form Cultus Lake, BC Area Chilliwack Location Name Teapot Hill Key Photos Pacific sideband snail – Lee Larkin – https://flic.kr/p/2pq8H8T View from top of the hill – Denis Knopp – https://flic.kr/p/2pq8WG Phantom orchid in bloom – Denis Knopp – https://flic.kr/p/2pq8WG Phantom orchid in bloom – Denis Knopp – https://flic.kr/p/2pq8AG Description Main trailhead (Road 918) and parking lot is right across from Honeymoon Bay Group Campground in Cultus Lake Provincial Park. Road 918 is a fire access road, so the beginning of the trail is a steady climb on a road grade. There is an outhouse and map sign about 100 meters from the trailhead. After about 20 minutes, the Horse Trail branches off to the left and heads north all the way to the park entrance. Continue a bit further to another fork and take the marked trail to the right. A steep climb begins soon and the next thing you know you're on top of the ridge which leads you to the final viewpoint where you can see Cultus Lake, Vedder Mountain, and Columbia Valley. Return the way you came or take an alternate route to Watt Creek. Photo Gallery https://flic.kr/s/aHBqIB91R3 Geographical East side of Cultus Lake across the highway from Honeymoon Bay Campground. Area/Trail Length Approximately 5 km return. Seasons to Visit Spring for wildflowers, Summer for birds, Fall for colourful maple leaves, Winter for open vistas. Any time for a great view from the top.
Region Cultus Lake, BC Area Chilliwack Location Name Teapot Hill Key Photos Pacific sideband snail – Lee Larkin – https://flic.kr/p/2pq8H8T View from top of the hill – Denis Knopp – https://flic.kr/p/2pq88WG Phantom orchid in bloom – Denis Knopp – https://flic.kr/p/2pq28J Description Main trailhead (Road 918) and parking lot is right across from Honeymoon Bay Group Campground in Cultus Lake Provincial Park. Road 918 is a fire access road, so the beginning of the trail is a steady climb on a road grade. There is an outhouse and map sign about 100 meters from the trailhead. After about 20 minutes, the Horse Trail branches off to the left and heads north all the way to the park entrance. Continue a bit further to another fork and take the marked trail to the right. A steep climb begins soon and the next thing you know you're on top of the ridge which leads you to the final viewpoint where you can see Cultus Lake, Vedder Mountain, and Columbia Valley. Return the way you came or take an alternate route to Watt Creek. Photo Gallery https://flic.kr/s/aHBqjB91R3 Geographical East side of Cultus Lake across the highway from Honeymoon Bay Campground. Area/Trail Length Approximately 5 km return. Seasons to Visit Spring for wildflowers, Summer for birds, Fall for colourful maple leaves, Winter for open vistas. Any time for a great view from the top. Cedar/hemlock forest in succession. Moist, lower elevations still have evidence of past logging with mature alder and bigleaf maple in old clearin Area Chilliwack Location Name Teapot Hill Key Photos Pacific sideband snail – Lee Larkin – https://flic.kr/p/2pq8H8T View from top of the hill – Denis Knopp – https://flic.kr/p/2pq8WG Phantom orchid in bloom – Denis Knopp – https://flic.kr/p/2pq8WG Phantom orchid in bloom – Denis Knopp – https://flic.kr/p/2pq88WG Phantom orchid in bloom – Denis Knopp – https://flic.kr/p/2pq88WG Phantom orchid in bloom – Denis Knopp – https://flic.kr/p/2pq88WG Phantom orchid in bloom – Denis Knopp – https://flic.kr/p/2pq88WG Photo Sauget (Regeneration of the second of t
Location Name Teapot Hill Key Photos Pacific sideband snail – Lee Larkin – https://flic.kr/p/2pq8H8T View from top of the hill – Denis Knopp – https://flic.kr/p/2pqf28J Description Main trailhead (Road 918) and parking lot is right across from Honeymoon Bay Group Campground in Cultus Lake Provincial Park. Road 918 is a fire access road, so the beginning of the trail is a steady climb on a road grade. There is an outhouse and map sign about 100 meters from the trailhead. After about 20 minutes, the Horse Trail branches off to the left and heads north all the way to the park entrance. Continue a bit further to another fork and take the marked trail to the right. A steep climb begins soon and the next thing you know you're on top of the ridge which leads you to the final viewpoint where you can see Cultus Lake, Vedder Mountain, and Columbia Valley. Return the way you came or take an alternate route to Watt Creek. Photo Gallery https://flic.kr/s/aHBqjB91R3 Geographical Description East side of Cultus Lake across the highway from Honeymoon Bay Campground. Area/Trail Length Approximately 5 km return. Seasons to Visit Spring for wildflowers, Summer for birds, Fall for colourful maple leaves, Winter for open vistas. Any time for a great view from the top. Habitat, Eco system Cedar/hemlock forest in succession. Moist, lower elevations still have evidence of past logging with mature alder and bigleaf maple in old clearings and roadsides. Upper elevations are dominated by mature Douglas-fir trees. Ferns and mosses dominate the understorey. Viewing Highlights Some vis Key Photos Pacific sideband snail – Lee Larkin – https://flic.kr/p/2pq8H8T View from top of the hill – Denis Knopp – https://flic.kr/p/2pqf8J Phantom orchid in bloom – Denis Knopp – https://flic.kr/p/2pqf8J Description Main trailhead (Road 918) and parking lot is right across from Honeymoon Bay Group Campground in Cultus Lake Provincial Park. Road 918 is a fire access road, so the beginning of the trail is a steady climb on a road grade. There is an outhouse and map sign about 100 meters from the trailhead. After about 20 minutes, the Horse Trail branches off to the left and heads north all the way to the park entrance. Continue a bit further to another fork and take the marked trail to the right. A steep climb begins soon and the next thing you know you're on top of the ridge which leads you to the final viewpoint where you can see Cultus Lake, Vedder Mountain, and Columbia Valley. Return the way you came or take an alternate route to Watt Creek. https://flic.kr/s/aHBqjB91R3 Geographical Description East side of Cultus Lake across the highway from Honeymoon Bay Campground. Area/Trail Length Approximately 5 km return. Seasons to Visit Spring for wildflowers, Summer for birds, Fall for colourful maple leaves, Winter for open vistas. Any time for a great view from the top. Habitat, Eco system Cedar/hemlock forest in succession. Moist, lower elevations still have evidence of past logging with mature alder and bigleaf maple in old clearings and roadsides. Upper elevations are dominated by mature Douglas-fir trees. Ferns and mosses dominate the understorey. Viewing Highlights Some visitors leave teapots and teacups
View from top of the hill – Denis Knopp – https://flic.kr/p/2pqfz8JDescriptionMain trailhead (Road 918) and parking lot is right across from Honeymoon Bay Group Campground in Cultus Lake Provincial Park. Road 918 is a fire access road, so the beginning of the trail is a steady climb on a road grade. There is an outhouse and map sign about 100 meters from the trailhead. After about 20 minutes, the Horse Trail branches off to the left and heads north all the way to the park entrance. Continue a bit further to another fork and take the marked trail to the right. A steep climb begins soon and the next thing you know you're on top of the ridge which leads you to the final viewpoint where you can see Cultus Lake, Vedder Mountain, and Columbia Valley. Return the way you came or take an alternate route to Watt Creek. https://flic.kr/s/aHBqjB91R3Geographical DescriptionEast side of Cultus Lake across the highway from Honeymoon Bay Campground.Seasons to VisitSpring for wildflowers, Summer for birds, Fall for colourful maple leaves, Winter for open vistas. Any time for a great view from the top.Habitat, Eco systemCedar/hemlock forest in succession. Moist, lower elevations still have evidence of past logging with mature alder and bigleaf maple in old clearings and roadsides. Upper elevations are dominated by mature Douglas-fir trees. Ferns and mosses dominate the understorey.Viewing HighlightsSome visitors leave teapots and teacups in the forest. Although this custom is discouraged, it is fun to try to find them all. The view from the top is spectacular. There is a large patch of rare Phantom Orchids. Other interesting plants include pathfinder, twinflower and tiger lify. Pacific Phantom orchid in bloom – Denis Knopp – https://flic.kr/p/2pqfz&J Description Main trailhead (Road 918) and parking lot is right across from Honeymoon Bay Group Campground in Cultus Lake Provincial Park. Road 918 is a fire access road, so the beginning of the trail is a steady climb on a road grade. There is an outhouse and map sign about 100 meters from the trailhead. After about 20 minutes, the Horse Trail branches off to the left and heads north all the way to the park entrance. Continue a bit further to another fork and take the marked trail to the right. A steep climb begins soon and the next thing you know you're on top of the ridge which leads you to the final viewpoint where you can see Cultus Lake, Vedder Mountain, and Columbia Valley. Return the way you came or take an alternate route to Watt Creek. Photo Gallery https://flic.kr/s/aHBqjB91R3 Geographical Description East side of Cultus Lake across the highway from Honeymoon Bay Campground. Area/Trail Length Approximately 5 km return. Seasons to Visit Spring for wildflowers, Summer for birds, Fall for colourful maple leaves, Winter for open vistas. Any time for a great view from the top. Habitat, Eco system Cedar/hemlock forest in succession. Moist, lower elevations still have evidence of past logging with mature alder and bigleaf maple in old clearings and roadsides. Upper elevations are dominated by mature Douglas-fir trees. Ferns and mosses dominate the understorey. Viewing Highlights Some visitors leave teapots and teacups in the forest. Although this custom is discouraged, it is fun to try to find them all. The view from the top is spectacular. There is a large patch of rare Phan Description Main trailhead (Road 918) and parking lot is right across from Honeymoon Bay Group Campground in Cultus Lake Provincial Park. Road 918 is a fire access road, so the beginning of the trail is a steady climb on a road grade. There is an outhouse and map sign about 100 meters from the trailhead. After about 20 minutes, the Horse Trail branches off to the left and heads north all the way to the park entrance. Continue a bit further to another fork and take the marked trail to the right. A steep climb begins soon and the next thing you know you're on top of the ridge which leads you to the final viewpoint where you can see Cultus Lake, Vedder Mountain, and Columbia Valley. Return the way you came or take an alternate route to Watt Creek. Photo Gallery https://flic.kr/s/aHBqjB91R3 Geographical Description East side of Cultus Lake across the highway from Honeymoon Bay Campground. Area/Trail Length Approximately 5 km return. Seasons to Visit Spring for wildflowers, Summer for birds, Fall for colourful maple leaves, Winter for open vistas. Any time for a great view from the top. Habitat, Eco system Cedar/hemlock forest in succession. Moist, lower elevations still have evidence of past logging with mature alder and bigleaf maple in old clearings and roadsides. Upper elevations are dominated by mature Douglas-fir trees. Ferns and mosses dominate the understorey. Viewing Highlights Some visitors leave teapots and teacups in the forest. Although this custom is discouraged, it is fun to try to find them all. The view from the top is spectacular. There is a large patch of rare Phantom Orchids. Other interesting plants include pathfinder, twinflower and tiger lily. Pacific
Bay Group Campground in Cultus Lake Provincial Park. Road 918 is a fire access road, so the beginning of the trail is a steady climb on a road grade. There is an outhouse and map sign about 100 meters from the trailhead. After about 20 minutes, the Horse Trail branches off to the left and heads north all the way to the park entrance. Continue a bit further to another fork and take the marked trail to the right. A steep climb begins soon and the next thing you know you're on top of the ridge which leads you to the final viewpoint where you can see Cultus Lake, Vedder Mountain, and Columbia Valley. Return the way you came or take an alternate route to Watt Creek.Photo Galleryhttps://flic.kr/s/aHBqjB91R3Geographical DescriptionEast side of Cultus Lake across the highway from Honeymoon Bay Campground.Seasons to VisitSpring for wildflowers, Summer for birds, Fall for colourful maple leaves, Winter for open vistas. Any time for a great view from the top.Habitat, Eco systemCedar/hemlock forest in succession. Moist, lower elevations still have evidence of past logging with mature alder and bigleaf maple in old clearings and roadsides. Upper elevations are dominated by mature Douglas-fir trees. Ferns and mosses dominate the understorey.Viewing HighlightsSome visitors leave teapots and teacups in the forest. Although this custom is discouraged, it is fun to try to find them all. The view from the top is spectacular. There is a large patch of rare Phantom Orchids. Other interesting plants include pathfinder, twinflower and tiger lily. Pacific
Bay Group Campground in Cultus Lake Provincial Park. Road 918 is a fire access road, so the beginning of the trail is a steady climb on a road grade. There is an outhouse and map sign about 100 meters from the trailhead. After about 20 minutes, the Horse Trail branches off to the left and heads north all the way to the park entrance. Continue a bit further to another fork and take the marked trail to the right. A steep climb begins soon and the next thing you know you're on top of the ridge which leads you to the final viewpoint where you can see Cultus Lake, Vedder Mountain, and Columbia Valley. Return the way you came or take an alternate route to Watt Creek.Photo Galleryhttps://flic.kr/s/aHBqjB91R3Geographical DescriptionEast side of Cultus Lake across the highway from Honeymoon Bay Campground.Seasons to VisitSpring for wildflowers, Summer for birds, Fall for colourful maple leaves, Winter for open vistas. Any time for a great view from the top.Habitat, Eco systemCedar/hemlock forest in succession. Moist, lower elevations still have evidence of past logging with mature alder and bigleaf maple in old clearings and roadsides. Upper elevations are dominated by mature Douglas-fir trees. Ferns and mosses dominate the understorey.Viewing HighlightsSome visitors leave teapots and teacups in the forest. Although this custom is discouraged, it is fun to try to find them all. The view from the top is spectacular. There is a large patch of rare Phantom Orchids. Other interesting plants include pathfinder, twinflower and tiger lily. Pacific access road, so the beginning of the trail is a steady climb on a road grade. There is an outhouse and map sign about 100 meters from the trailhead. After about 20 minutes, the Horse Trail branches off to the left and heads north all the way to the park entrance. Continue a bit further to another fork and take the marked trail to the right. A steep climb begins soon and the next thing you know you're on top of the ridge which leads you to the final viewpoint where you can see Cultus Lake, Vedder Mountain, and Columbia Valley. Return the way you came or take an alternate route to Watt Creek.Photo Galleryhttps://flic.kr/s/aHBqjB91R3Geographical DescriptionEast side of Cultus Lake across the highway from Honeymoon Bay Campground.Seasons to VisitSpring for wildflowers, Summer for birds, Fall for colourful maple leaves, Winter for open vistas. Any time for a great view from the top.Habitat, Eco systemCedar/hemlock forest in succession. Moist, lower elevations still have evidence of past logging with mature alder and bigleaf maple in old clearings and roadsides. Upper elevations are dominated by mature Douglas-fir trees. Ferns and mosses dominate the understorey.Viewing HighlightsSome visitors leave teapots and teacups in the forest. Although this custom is discouraged, it is fun to try to find them all. The view from the top is spectacular. There is a large patch of rare Phantom Orchids. Other interesting plants include pathfinder, twinflower and tiger lily. Pacific
There is an outhouse and map sign about 100 meters from the trailhead. After about 20 minutes, the Horse Trail branches off to the left and heads north all the way to the park entrance. Continue a bit further to another fork and take the marked trail to the right. A steep climb begins soon and the next thing you know you're on top of the ridge which leads you to the final viewpoint where you can see Cultus Lake, Vedder Mountain, and Columbia Valley. Return the way you came or take an alternate route to Watt Creek.Photo Galleryhttps://flic.kr/s/aHBqjB91R3Geographical DescriptionEast side of Cultus Lake across the highway from Honeymoon Bay Campground.Seasons to VisitSpring for wildflowers, Summer for birds, Fall for colourful maple leaves, Winter for open vistas. Any time for a great view from the top.Habitat, Eco systemCedar/hemlock forest in succession. Moist, lower elevations still have evidence of past logging with mature alder and bigleaf maple in old clearings and roadsides. Upper elevations are dominated by mature Douglas-fir trees. Ferns and mosses dominate the understorey.Viewing HighlightsSome visitors leave teapots and teacups in the forest. Although this custom is discouraged, it is fun to try to find them all. The view from the top is spectacular. There is a large patch of rare Phantom Orchids. Other interesting plants include pathfinder, twinflower and tiger lily. Pacific After about 20 minutes, the Horse Trail branches off to the left and heads north all the way to the park entrance. Continue a bit further to another fork and take the marked trail to the right. A steep climb begins soon and the next thing you know you're on top of the ridge which leads you to the final viewpoint where you can see Cultus Lake, Vedder Mountain, and Columbia Valley. Return the way you came or take an alternate route to Watt Creek.Photo Galleryhttps://flic.kr/s/aHBqjB91R3Geographical DescriptionEast side of Cultus Lake across the highway from Honeymoon Bay Campground.Area/Trail LengthApproximately 5 km return.Seasons to VisitSpring for wildflowers, Summer for birds, Fall for colourful maple leaves, Winter for open vistas. Any time for a great view from the top.Habitat, Eco systemCedar/hemlock forest in succession. Moist, lower elevations still have evidence of past logging with mature alder and bigleaf maple in old clearings and roadsides. Upper elevations are dominated by mature Douglas-fir trees. Ferns and mosses dominate the understorey.Viewing HighlightsSome visitors leave teapots and teacups in the forest. Although this custom is discouraged, it is fun to try to find them all. The view from the top is spectacular. There is a large patch of rare Phantom Orchids. Other interesting plants include pathfinder, twinflower and tiger lily. Pacific north all the way to the park entrance. Continue a bit further to another fork and take the marked trail to the right. A steep climb begins soon and the next thing you know you're on top of the ridge which leads you to the final viewpoint where you can see Cultus Lake, Vedder Mountain, and Columbia Valley. Return the way you came or take an alternate route to Watt Creek.Photo Galleryhttps://flic.kr/s/aHBqjB91R3Geographical DescriptionEast side of Cultus Lake across the highway from Honeymoon Bay Campground.Area/Trail LengthApproximately 5 km return.Seasons to VisitSpring for wildflowers, Summer for birds, Fall for colourful maple leaves, Winter for open vistas. Any time for a great view from the top.Habitat, Eco systemCedar/hemlock forest in succession. Moist, lower elevations still have evidence of past logging with mature alder and bigleaf maple in old clearings and roadsides. Upper elevations are dominated by mature Douglas-fir trees. Ferns and mosses dominate the understorey.Viewing HighlightsSome visitors leave teapots and teacups in the forest. Although this custom is discouraged, it is fun to try to find them all. The view from the top is spectacular. There is a large patch of rare Phantom Orchids. Other interesting plants include pathfinder, twinflower and tiger lily. Pacific and take the marked trail to the right. A steep climb begins soon and the next thing you know you're on top of the ridge which leads you to the final viewpoint where you can see Cultus Lake, Vedder Mountain, and Columbia Valley. Return the way you came or take an alternate route to Watt Creek.Photo Galleryhttps://flic.kr/s/aHBqjB91R3Geographical DescriptionEast side of Cultus Lake across the highway from Honeymoon Bay Campground.Area/Trail LengthApproximately 5 km return.Seasons to VisitSpring for wildflowers, Summer for birds, Fall for colourful maple leaves, Winter for open vistas. Any time for a great view from the top.Habitat, Eco systemCedar/hemlock forest in succession. Moist, lower elevations still have evidence of past logging with mature alder and bigleaf maple in old clearings and roadsides. Upper elevations are dominated by mature Douglas-fir trees. Ferns and mosses dominate the understorey.Viewing HighlightsSome visitors leave teapots and teacups in the forest. Although this custom is discouraged, it is fun to try to find them all. The view from the top is spectacular. There is a large patch of rare Phantom Orchids. Other interesting plants include pathfinder, twinflower and tiger lily. Pacific next thing you know you're on top of the ridge which leads you to the final viewpoint where you can see Cultus Lake, Vedder Mountain, and Columbia Valley. Return the way you came or take an alternate route to Watt Creek.Photo Galleryhttps://flic.kr/s/aHBqjB91R3Geographical DescriptionEast side of Cultus Lake across the highway from Honeymoon Bay Campground.Area/Trail LengthApproximately 5 km return.Seasons to VisitSpring for wildflowers, Summer for birds, Fall for colourful maple leaves, Winter for open vistas. Any time for a great view from the top.Habitat, Eco systemCedar/hemlock forest in succession. Moist, lower elevations still have evidence of past logging with mature alder and bigleaf maple in old clearings and roadsides. Upper elevations are dominated by mature Douglas-fir trees. Ferns and mosses dominate the understorey.Viewing HighlightsSome visitors leave teapots and teacups in the forest. Although this custom is discouraged, it is fun to try to find them all. The view from the top is spectacular. There is a large patch of rare Phantom Orchids. Other interesting plants include pathfinder, twinflower and tiger lily. Pacific viewpoint where you can see Cultus Lake, Vedder Mountain, and Columbia Valley. Return the way you came or take an alternate route to Watt Creek.Photo Galleryhttps://flic.kr/s/aHBqjB91R3Geographical DescriptionEast side of Cultus Lake across the highway from Honeymoon Bay Campground.Area/Trail LengthApproximately 5 km return.Seasons to VisitSpring for wildflowers, Summer for birds, Fall for colourful maple leaves, Winter for open vistas. Any time for a great view from the top.Habitat, Eco systemCedar/hemlock forest in succession. Moist, lower elevations still have evidence of past logging with mature alder and bigleaf maple in old clearings and roadsides. Upper elevations are dominated by mature Douglas-fir trees. Ferns and mosses dominate the understorey.Viewing HighlightsSome visitors leave teapots and teacups in the forest. Although this custom is discouraged, it is fun to try to find them all. The view from the top is spectacular. There is a large patch of rare Phantom Orchids. Other interesting plants include pathfinder, twinflower and tiger lily. Pacific Valley. Return the way you came or take an alternate route to Watt Creek.Photo Galleryhttps://flic.kr/s/aHBqjB91R3Geographical DescriptionEast side of Cultus Lake across the highway from Honeymoon Bay Campground.Area/Trail LengthApproximately 5 km return.Seasons to VisitSpring for wildflowers, Summer for birds, Fall for colourful maple leaves, Winter for open vistas. Any time for a great view from the top.Habitat, Eco systemCedar/hemlock forest in succession. Moist, lower elevations still have evidence of past logging with mature alder and bigleaf maple in old clearings and roadsides. Upper elevations are dominated by mature Douglas-fir trees. Ferns and mosses dominate the understorey.Viewing HighlightsSome visitors leave teapots and teacups in the forest. Although this custom is discouraged, it is fun to try to find them all. The view from the top is spectacular. There is a large patch of rare Phantom Orchids. Other interesting plants include pathfinder, twinflower and tiger lily. Pacific Photo Gallery https://flic.kr/s/aHBqjB91R3 Geographical Description East side of Cultus Lake across the highway from Honeymoon Bay Campground. Area/Trail Length Approximately 5 km return. Seasons to Visit Spring for wildflowers, Summer for birds, Fall for colourful maple leaves, Winter for open vistas. Any time for a great view from the top. Habitat, Eco system Cedar/hemlock forest in succession. Moist, lower elevations still have evidence of past logging with mature alder and bigleaf maple in old clearings and roadsides. Upper elevations are dominated by mature Douglas-fir trees. Ferns and mosses dominate the understorey. Viewing Highlights Some visitors leave teapots and teacups in the forest. Although this custom is discouraged, it is fun to try to find them all. The view from the top is spectacular. There is a large patch of rare Phantom Orchids. Other interesting plants include pathfinder, twinflower and tiger lily. Pacific Geographical DescriptionEast side of Cultus Lake across the highway from Honeymoon Bay Campground.Area/Trail LengthApproximately 5 km return.Seasons to VisitSpring for wildflowers, Summer for birds, Fall for colourful maple leaves, Winter for open vistas. Any time for a great view from the top.Habitat, Eco systemCedar/hemlock forest in succession. Moist, lower elevations still have evidence of past logging with mature alder and bigleaf maple in old clearings and roadsides. Upper elevations are dominated by mature Douglas-fir trees. Ferns and mosses dominate the understorey.Viewing HighlightsSome visitors leave teapots and teacups in the forest. Although this custom is discouraged, it is fun to try to find them all. The view from the top is spectacular. There is a large patch of rare Phantom Orchids. Other interesting plants include pathfinder, twinflower and tiger lily. Pacific DescriptionCampground.Area/Trail LengthApproximately 5 km return.Seasons to VisitSpring for wildflowers, Summer for birds, Fall for colourful maple leaves, Winter for open vistas. Any time for a great view from the top.Habitat, Eco systemCedar/hemlock forest in succession. Moist, lower elevations still have evidence of past logging with mature alder and bigleaf maple in old clearings and roadsides. Upper elevations are dominated by mature Douglas-fir trees. Ferns and mosses dominate the understorey.Viewing HighlightsSome visitors leave teapots and teacups in the forest. Although this custom is discouraged, it is fun to try to find them all. The view from the top is spectacular. There is a large patch of rare Phantom Orchids. Other interesting plants include pathfinder, twinflower and tiger lily. Pacific
DescriptionCampground.Area/Trail LengthApproximately 5 km return.Seasons to VisitSpring for wildflowers, Summer for birds, Fall for colourful maple leaves, Winter for open vistas. Any time for a great view from the top.Habitat, Eco systemCedar/hemlock forest in succession. Moist, lower elevations still have evidence of past logging with mature alder and bigleaf maple in old clearings and roadsides. Upper elevations are dominated by mature Douglas-fir trees. Ferns and mosses dominate the understorey.Viewing HighlightsSome visitors leave teapots and teacups in the forest. Although this custom is discouraged, it is fun to try to find them all. The view from the top is spectacular. There is a large patch of rare Phantom Orchids. Other interesting plants include pathfinder, twinflower and tiger lily. Pacific Area/Trail LengthApproximately 5 km return.Seasons to VisitSpring for wildflowers, Summer for birds, Fall for colourful maple leaves, Winter for open vistas. Any time for a great view from the top.Habitat, Eco systemCedar/hemlock forest in succession. Moist, lower elevations still have evidence of past logging with mature alder and bigleaf maple in old clearings and roadsides. Upper elevations are dominated by mature Douglas-fir trees. Ferns and mosses dominate the understorey.Viewing HighlightsSome visitors leave teapots and teacups in the forest. Although this custom is discouraged, it is fun to try to find them all. The view from the top is spectacular. There is a large patch of rare Phantom Orchids. Other interesting plants include pathfinder, twinflower and tiger lily. Pacific Seasons to VisitSpring for wildflowers, Summer for birds, Fall for colourful maple leaves, Winter for open vistas. Any time for a great view from the top.Habitat, Eco systemCedar/hemlock forest in succession. Moist, lower elevations still have evidence of past logging with mature alder and bigleaf maple in old clearings and roadsides. Upper elevations are dominated by mature Douglas-fir trees. Ferns and mosses dominate the understorey.Viewing HighlightsSome visitors leave teapots and teacups in the forest. Although this custom is discouraged, it is fun to try to find them all. The view from the top is spectacular. There is a large patch of rare Phantom Orchids. Other interesting plants include pathfinder, twinflower and tiger lily. Pacific Winter for open vistas. Any time for a great view from the top.Habitat, Eco systemCedar/hemlock forest in succession. Moist, lower elevations still have evidence of past logging with mature alder and bigleaf maple in old clearings and roadsides. Upper elevations are dominated by mature Douglas-fir trees. Ferns and mosses dominate the understorey.Viewing HighlightsSome visitors leave teapots and teacups in the forest. Although this custom is discouraged, it is fun to try to find them all. The view from the top is spectacular. There is a large patch of rare Phantom Orchids. Other interesting plants include pathfinder, twinflower and tiger lily. Pacific Habitat, Eco systemCedar/hemlock forest in succession. Moist, lower elevations still have evidence of past logging with mature alder and bigleaf maple in old clearings and roadsides. Upper elevations are dominated by mature Douglas-fir trees. Ferns and mosses dominate the understorey.Viewing HighlightsSome visitors leave teapots and teacups in the forest. Although this custom is discouraged, it is fun to try to find them all. The view from the top is spectacular. There is a large patch of rare Phantom Orchids. Other interesting plants include pathfinder, twinflower and tiger lily. Pacific evidence of past logging with mature alder and bigleaf maple in old clearings and roadsides. Upper elevations are dominated by mature Douglas-fir trees. Ferns and mosses dominate the understorey.Viewing HighlightsSome visitors leave teapots and teacups in the forest. Although this custom is discouraged, it is fun to try to find them all. The view from the top is spectacular. There is a large patch of rare Phantom Orchids. Other interesting plants include pathfinder, twinflower and tiger lily. Pacific clearings and roadsides. Upper elevations are dominated by mature Douglas-fir trees. Ferns and mosses dominate the understorey.Viewing HighlightsSome visitors leave teapots and teacups in the forest. Although this custom is discouraged, it is fun to try to find them all. The view from the top is spectacular. There is a large patch of rare Phantom Orchids. Other interesting plants include pathfinder, twinflower and tiger lily. Pacific Douglas-fir trees. Ferns and mosses dominate the understorey.Viewing HighlightsSome visitors leave teapots and teacups in the forest. Although this custom is discouraged, it is fun to try to find them all. The view from the top is spectacular. There is a large patch of rare Phantom Orchids. Other interesting plants include pathfinder, twinflower and tiger lily. Pacific Viewing HighlightsSome visitors leave teapots and teacups in the forest. Although this custom is discouraged, it is fun to try to find them all. The view from the top is spectacular. There is a large patch of rare Phantom Orchids. Other interesting plants include pathfinder, twinflower and tiger lily. Pacific is discouraged, it is fun to try to find them all. The view from the top is spectacular. There is a large patch of rare Phantom Orchids. Other interesting plants include pathfinder, twinflower and tiger lily. Pacific spectacular. There is a large patch of rare Phantom Orchids. Other interesting plants include pathfinder, twinflower and tiger lily. Pacific interesting plants include pathfinder, twinflower and tiger lily. Pacific sideband snall. Douglas sourrel. Red-breasted sabsucker and several species of owl make the area home. Many mushrooms are found in the fall.
Other FeaturesEvidence of early logging and lots of wildflowers in the spring.
Main Access From Highway #1 take exit #119. Head south on Vedder Road. Go straight through the roundabout at the Vedder River. Continue on Vedder Mountain Road to the next roundabout. Take the left-hand exit to Cultus Lake on Columbia Valley Road. Continue through the roundabout at Cultus Lake to the Provincial Park. The trail is near the entrance to the provincial park.
LAT, LONG 49.042517 -121.983808
Secondary Accesses There is another entrance at Watt Creek, across from Maple Bay Picnic Area, with parking for horse trailers and water for horses.CautionsThe top part of the trail is steep and can be slippery. Stay behind the Area, with parking for horse trailers and water for horses.CautionsThe top part of the trail is steep and can be slippery. Stay behind the Area, with parking for horse trailers and water for horses.
Area, with parking for horse trailers and water for horses.CautionsThe top part of the trail is steep and can be slippery. Stay behind the fenced barrier at the viewpoint. The provincial park is adjacent to a large

Regulations	Dogs on leash are permitted. No ATV's.
Facilities	Parking at trailhead. Outhouse and map sign about 100 meters up from trailhead. Also, several interpretive signs and trail markers en route.
Other Recreational Activities	Mountain biking is permitted on Road 918. Horseback riding from Watt Creek to Horse Trail.
Other Connections	Several other trails in Cultus Lake Provincial Park.
History	Cultus Lake Provincial Park was established in 1949. The forest has a history of early logging and wildfires. During logging road construction in the 1940's, an equipment operator walked over to the hill and found a single teapot, "That's how Teapot Hill got its name."
For More Info
Links	BC Parks – https://bcparks.ca/explore/parkpgs/cultus_lk/ Vancouver Trails – https://www.vancouvertrails.com/trails/teapot-hill/
Describe the type of area where the site is located	Provincial Park
Should this Nature Site be preserved as a protected site	Yes
File #	Caption for Photograph	Name of Photographer
#1	Pacific sideband snail	Lee Larkin
#2	View from top of Teapot Hill	Denis Knopp
#3	Phantom orchid in bloom	Denis Knopp

Figure 1. Pacific Sideband Snail Figure 2. View from Teapot Hill Figure 3. Phantom Orchid

